Bush Names Second CIA Deputy

CIA Director George Bush — following President Ford's executive order reorganizing the U.S. intelligence community — today named a former commander of the 6th Fleet to be his deputy for relations with other intelligence agencies.

Vice Adm. Daniel J. Murphy, "will direct the day-to-day business of the community staff and has particular responsibility for the management of resources devoted to U.S. intelligence activities," Bush said in a statement.

Murphy, 54, is Bush's second deputy appointed under the restructuring plan. The other is Army Lt. Gen. Vernon Walters, who has been a CIA deputy director for several years.
